

Income in 2022 as compared to 2021

The student's father must fill out the form if he is required to contribute toward the cost of the student's education and expects that his income for the 2022 calendar year will be at least 10% less than that for 2021.

If the student is the dependent of both parents, each parent must fill out a separate form. If the parents are separated or divorced, only the parent with physical custody of the student is required to fill out a form.

Section 3 – Assessment of Financial Resources for 2022

Assessment of income to be reported to Revenu Québec

Please provide your income for the 2022 calendar year. Add the amounts you expect to receive by December 31, 2022, to those you have already received to date. If you have no income to report, enter zero.

To determine your total income, follow the procedure used on the 2021 Québec income tax return form. Your total income for 2022 is the amount that would appear on line 199 of the income tax return.

Important

1. You must inform us in writing as soon as possible of any change occurring after the date of this declaration that affects the income you earned or expect to earn for 2022. An increase or decrease in income may affect the amount of financial assistance awarded to the student. You must inform Aide financière aux études in writing and indicate the new amounts to be taken into consideration in processing the application for financial assistance.
2. Any false statements may result in penalties or legal action. If you fail to report income you have earned, the student may be required to repay part or all of the financial assistance awarded to him or her.
